Mr. MORRILL said the Tariff Bill was dead, and he added that it was now shown that there was not a Republican majority in the Senate.

Mr. Teller responded with inteuse feeling. He declared that he and his silver Republican associates could not be read out of the Republican party.

Mr. Sherman followed with a severe arraignment of the inaction of Congress, saying it was a crime against the country and against civilization. He de-clared that he would continue to arge action on the Tariff Bill.

When Senator JOHN SHERMAN spoke he, in a caliu and sensible speech, told in plain words what the Senate ought to do. He began by saying: "This biti lose not belong to any party is nor a part of any party; it only means that it supplies $40,000,000 of money to the sury, and it has no merit except to eve the ever growing deficit. I ald not have voted for it except for reason. I will vote for any tax proed by Democrat or Republican on tes, or anything that will supply to the Treasury to run the Gov-nt. It is a disgrace that we are ling $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 more n onr receipts, and that Congress is session and sitting idle and will not anything to relieve the situation. are going on like a careless spend-ift, not caring for anything." Then, ting with sarcasm, "Except selling ds and increasing our public debt."

Senator HARRIS asked why the selgnorage was coined, and Sonator Sherman said the Senator from Tennessee wanted to shift him off the main subject to that of silver, and he replied that the llouse, fresh from the people, had decided once and for all that question. The Senate did not represent the people, but the states; the House does represent the peo-ple, and they have spoken. "I do not consider my duty discharged until some action is done to give the President and his Secretary of Treasury sufficient money to carry on the Government, and therefore I will again endeavor to get this bill before the Senate."

Mr. FRYE, Republican, of Maine, took the floor to deciare that the Tariff Bill was as dead as Julius C.ESAB. Susiness interests demanded that the statement be made emphatically that the hill was dead. He hoped it would never be heard from again and that the

A Freech autiquerian has recently brought to light some dressmakers' bills of Napoteon's time. They are from that account books of fervey, the Worth of his time. It appears that Josephine's yearly bill was bind; §3,000, and this was a greater amount than Marte Louise or Queen Increase dared or desired to speed. Napoteon's mother was not a patron of Lerey, which is explained by the fact that she preferred to receive her dresses from her daughters rather than purchase them herself.
